COLLEGE BOUND? AAA'S GUIDE FOR CAMPUS LIFE

Help for those college-bound

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA (August 9, 2013) -- As students move into their dorms and apartments away from home for the first time, AAA has issued a guide for college bound students.

First step, AAA suggests families take out a renter's insurance policy. With laptops, tablets, smart phones and other personal belongings, college students can easily have $10,000 worth of property in their dorm or apartment.

The next step is the vehicle maintenance. Often times someone else at home oversees vehicle maintenance. Parents need to make sure their young drivers know how to check things on their own like tire pressure. Remember to review the vehicle's maintenance schedule.

Lastly, families should prepare their loved ones for roadside emergencies. Students could have break downs on their way to school or on their way home, so make plans to have a roadside service provider like AAA for example.

Those are just some of the tips from AAA, for more information visit: AAA Guide for Campus Life
